SATURDAY AFTERNOON, APRIL 10.

Office on Pennsylvania avenue, south side, between Four-and-a-half and Sixth

That "it is very improving to talk about things of which one knows nothing," used to be said by a man of wise saws, whom we well remember; and we occasionally test the correctness of his opinion

In the Whig cauche last night there was some earnest and spirited discussion, as we gather from the outgivings day. But as "All's well that ends well," a good report might be given, for the adjournment was orderly, and a quiet, good, even spirit evidently rested upon the retiring Senators and Representatives. The way the wind blows is to-day indicated by things more substantial than straws. Osceola and Sam Jones were long announced as "coming in" before they appeared, but this will not prove to be the case with reference to some of our political flankers. Among them a general "coming in" is manifest and inevitable. Occupying the high position of magnanimous philanthropists, may we not counsel our friends? Let there be no remembrance of past differences, but let all bruises, occasioned by kicking against the traces, be healed up as speedily as possible. It is at once the fault and the merit of colts of high metal to prove momentarily forgetful of wholesome restraints, especially when too well supplied from the crib.

We think we have the Whigs pretty nigh right now, and shall give the Democrats a share of our attention. Mr. Buchanan, General Cass, and Judge Douglas are all in excellent conditionstrong and hopeful. The destiny of each for four years is in the hands of the Baltimore Convention, unless the people of the country happen to dissent from the choice of that convention. This may or may not be the case. Now, as conventions are troublesome and expensive, we think the Whig party would act wisely in dispensing with such a thing. All they need do, if they aim at success, is to poll the Baltimore Convention. and take up the man whom that convention shall denounce with greatest severity. If they do this, they have only to put him ferward and "go in and win." We wouldn't give a dime to have his success insured. But with a leader afflicted with the praises and caresses of an opposing party, there is no more chance for success than with a traitorous general on a battle-field.

Parson Brownlow, of Tennessee.

When this gentlemen is not impulsive and ter rible, he is not himself. We observe that the Democratic papers are noticing him with high commendation because he has declared: " If George Washington were on earth, and in his prime, and was brought forward and sustained by the men who are backing Scott, we could not and would not support him.

We have no doubt the Whigs will grieve much to lose Mr. Brownlow; but all good Christians among them must let their good will and affection go out after him, even after he has gone over to the Philistines. There are men in both parties who will rule or ruin-themselves. They, of course, should be permitted to have their way, as this is the only means of keeping peace with them.

The Caucus Last Night.

A meeting of the Whig members of both houses of Congress took place last evening in the Senate Chamber, pursuant to previous notice, "to con sider of matters of importance to the Whig party. The meeting, as we learn, was called to order a about half-past seven o'clock, when Mr. Senator Mangum was invited to the chair, and Mr. Chandler, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Dockery, of North Carolina, appointed secretaries. After some discussion on topics presented to the meeting, (of he nature of which, of course, we have no tain information, as the meeting was held with closed doors,) it adjourned at about 11 o'clock to meet again on Tuesday week .- Intelligencer.

Extension of the Capitol.

We perceive that the Senate yesterday concurred in the amendment of the House increasing the appropriation for this purpose to $500,000 and added another amendment which will require the bill to be returned to the House. There is now no certainty as to when it may be reached there, owing to the amount of business having precedence of it. We trust, however, that there may be no unnecessary delay, and that the workmen who are anxiously awaiting the final action of Congress and the Executive may not remain longer in suspense.

Remittances to Ireland, &c.

In referring to the advertisement of Adams & Co.'s Express office, we take occasion to say that no more accurate, safe, or expeditious means exists for giving facilities to persons baving communications to make to their friends in Europe. Messrs. Edwards, Sanford & Co. have been well tried and approved, and it is fortunate for all interested that agents so satisfactory and faithful may be found to perform the offices so often called for by the poor yet true-hearted and devoted immigrants in this country.

Ber We are indebted to the politeness of Mr. Joe Shillington for a copy of the Democratic Review for March. This work is always interesting, but is at this moment peculiarly attractive to many on account of the pungency of some of its lateral treatises. The portrait of Colonel James Duncan is contained in this number. A sketch of his life is also given.

Mr. Webster.

We regret to learn that this distinguished gentleman, from the effects of a recent cold, has been for a couple of days confined to his house. With fair weather, however, his reappearance at the State Department may be expected on the opening of the coming week.

Secretary Stuart. We learn that the April number of the American Whig Review contains an excellent likeness of the Hon. A. H. H. Stuart, Secretary of the In-

We perceive that men of each party promise themselves great advantages from the divisions among their adversaries. There are no divisions on voting days that stand so wide apart as Whigs and Democrats.

The Easter Ball.

Let it be remembered that the great Civic and Military Ball of the Walker Sharpshooters is to take place on Monday evening next, and that it is to be a popular and magnificent affair.

Hon. R. J. Walker, we learn from a private letter, is at Reigate, and in vary poor health. hereabout say, he's one on em !

City Collector.

MESSRS. EDITORS: I respectfully request the privilege of your columns for the purpose of sug-gesting to the City Councils the propriety of changing the manner of paying the salary of the City Collector. This officer is now paid by fees a percentage on the amount of money collected. It is thought that the substitution of a regular salary would be best, and far more acceptable the citizens. I have heard it stated that the salary of this officer, under the present arrange-ment, exceeds $6,000 per annum. I do not know about the correctness of this statement; but if it approximates to near that amount, I think it far more than the tax-payers of the city are willing to submit to. At all events, every other officer of the Corporation is paid a regular salary, and I think there can be no sufficient reason why a different course should be pursued in the case of the Collector.

As this subject is one of public interest, and discussed upon erroneous data, we think it well to set our correspondent right. The Collector's office was reorganized in 1849. when, after mature investigation, the present plan was approved. We believe that in none of our cities is the collector paid a salary, but that great care is taken to make it his interest to perform his duties thoroughly and with the greatest

If a reform were needed, it might be effected by reducing the rates of commission; but none such appears to be called for. The rates now are, on annual taxes three per centum, on special taxes two. The aggregate amount has never exceeded in any one year one hundred thousand, except last year, when the collections of two years were made in one. Ninety thousand is about the usual amount. This may be learned from the annual messages of the Mayor. The gross receipts of the Collector must therefore fall far below three thousand dollars a year. And what are his expenses? For two clerks, $1,300; for special clerks at elections, and other specialties, some one, two or three hundred. Does this leave him too much? We do not think so.

We shall go in for retrenchment when it is needed; but we respectfully submit that it is not needed in the present case, and we would particularly urge our conviction that a change of rate, and not a change of plan, can at any time be desirable with reference to the compensation of the Collector.

The Penalty of Death.

We do not oppose our views to those of the majority of our countrymen in a spirit of intolerance. If we are wrong, it is by no means our first important error of judgment. But we never hear the words of man condemning his fellow-man to death, in compliance with the will of the community, without feeling, as one of that community, that the life of the condemned is unnecessarily destroyed, and that his blood is upon us all.

In the Richmond Examiner of yesterday we read as follows :

"Mr. Vice President Fillmore has refused to pardon Clements and Reid, the two unhappy men now lying in Henrico jail under sentence of death for mutiny and murder at sea, off the coast of Brazil, and they will be hanged to-day on Poorhouse Hill. A splendid new gallows, costing near three hundred dollars, has been erected, and a rope of peculiar excellence has been pre pared for their accommodation; and the Devil's Children in the mob of this city are enjoying the prospect of the Devil's Holiday this morning with undisguised eestacy.

To-day the National Intelligencer contains the following welcome announcement:

"A Respite. - Reid and Clements, two sailor lately convicted of piracy at Richmond, (Va.,) and sentenced to be hung at that place yesterday, have been respited by the President of the United States for two weeks

Imprisonment for life-the power of pardon being withdrawn from the Executive, and no respite possible, except upon proof of innocence before a judicial tribunal-would accomplish all the good intended by the law; and therefore the execution of the wretch, and the fearful influence of that spectacle, should not be inflicted.

An Important Lecture.

tarian Church in this city, the Rev. CHARLES SPEAR will lecture on subjects connected with the prevention of crime, the punishment of the criminal, his reformation, and the protection and welfare of human society.

Mr. Spear will not desecrate the Sabbath day by the discussion of any theme not essential to the true observance of the Divine commands, nor will he utter any word that can fall unwelcome upon the ear of any believing Christian, no matter what his shade of thought or form of worship. He will discuss only a definite subject, upon which we may all agree. We trust, therefore, that our whole people may regard his invitation as addressed to them, and that they may go in multitudes to hear the counsels and instructions he has to give.

-Laws, human and Divine, give us power over the violator of law: but these same laws require of us the just, the humane, and beneficent exercise of this power; and he errs sadly who does not appreciate his true position, and know that to the extent of his influence in society he is re sponsible for all wrong or abuse done by it.

Mr. Spear is highly accredited, bearing the most exalted testimonials from Daniel Webster, Edward Everett, Abbot Lawrence, &c., -- with such testimonials, indeed, as recently obtained access for him alike into the prisons and palaces of France and England. May his voice and in fluence be heard throughout the world.

S. L. De Bibory, an artist, in a communication to the Baltimore Patriot, states that he painted and exhibited "The Dream of Jagiello," to which painting it is presumed that Kossuth alluded in explaining the slight put upon Miss Jagiello, (now Madame Tochman,) in this city, last winter. He pledges his honor, as a Hungarian nobleman, and now as a citizen of the United States, of which he is proud, that he never received an order from her, or any person, to paint this picture. The accusation, therefore, made against Miss Jagiello, which alleges that she, by her order, was painted in the uniform of a Hungarian General, he declares, is a mere calumnu no matter who makes it.

In North Carolina, Fillmore and Graham have been nominated at every public Whig meeting in the State.—Ashville (N. C.) Messenger.

Messrs. Fillmore and Graham are worthy the confidence and support of the Whigs of that State, and of any other State; nor do we suppose it would be necessary to connect them to render either gentleman acceptable there. The Old North State will no doubt be true to the Whig party with or without her favorite son upon the

The editor of the Reveille, published at Cambridge, Indiana, says that if ignorance be bliss, he thinks some of the folks in that town need'nt long for a happier world. As the b'hoys The Vote by Ballot.

In Virginia the ballot is not permitted. W are not sure that this is the case in any other State in the Union. The candidates in many parts of that State take their places near the judge's seat, and "spot" the voters. Virginia, however, is progressing, and will ere long reform this.

We regard the ballot-box as an essential in a republic. It is the guaranty of independent voting. The following, on English politics, and incidentally on this subject, is from the New York

"As intelligence spreads among the industria classes in England, they are becoming clamorous for their civil and political rights. The struggle between the hereditary nobility and rulers, and the middle and commercial classes, has been going on for many years; and now the industrial classes, or 'common people,' as they are gener-ally called, begin to discern their rights, and to demand political equality with the 'middle' and 'upper' classes. In short, England is henceforth to be the theatre of a struggle between democracy and aristocracy. The character of this struggle is already shadowed forth in the discussion which took place in the British Commons on Mr. Hume's motion for leave to bring a bill to extend the franchise to every householder of full age, and to enact that the voting be by ballot.

"We may here notice the very absurd manner in which Mr. D'Israeli argued against the ballot system. He quoted a sentence from the last an-nual message of Gov. Hunt, and a few paragraphs from articles which appeared in New York papers, in reference to occurrences at the polls in the nineteenth ward of this city at the last election, to show that bribery and rioting were not restrained by the ballot. But Mr. D'Israeli nust know that the occurrences to which he re ferred form the exceptions to the generally quiet character of American elections, and that it is the ballot that makes them the exception. It also nappened, unfortunately for the force of Mr. D'Israeli's argument, that the American party of whom he quoted charges of bribery were de-feated in the very instance in which the alleged attempts to succeed by bribery were made. the scenes of commotion and mob violence which generally characterize English and Irish elections we need not speak. Any contrast with elections in this country can only strengthen the cause of democracy and of vote by ballot."

Voice of the Whigs of New York. The following are the resolutions of the Whig

egislative caucus on Wednesday evening: "Whereas Gen. Winfield Scott, in consideration of his life having been wholly devoted and ac-tually spent in the service of his country, and such service he has pre-eminently advanced its honor and renown at home and abroad, has shown himself justly entitled to the gratitude and affection of his countrymen: therefore,

"Resolved, That the Whig members of the egislature of this State do present to the Whig National Convention his name as their first choice for the Presidency, subject to the decision of such Obstuary.

It is always with difficulty that the death of a friend is realized. His absence, when the mind is inactive and dormant, is regarded as temporary; and it is only when reason and reflection resume their throne that we feel the magnitude of our loss. Thus we have feit in the demise of the late Dr. B. W. MORRISON. Death loves a bright mark, and with truth his predilection may be said to have been gratified in this instance. It is so unusual at the present day to find a young man combining all the attributes of a Christian with a just and liberal appreciation of the customs of the world, that the remembrance of his example should not be lost. Strictly chaste, moral, and religious in his character—sociable, obliging, and affectionate in his disposition—studious, settled and persevering in his habits—he at once commanded the admiration and respect of all who knew him. As a student of medicine, he was devoted to his profession. Under circumstances of the most trying nature, he prosecuted his studies with an aspiration to be worthy of his diploma; but when the hour of its reception came, it found him almost in the arms of death. With a smile of pride and triumph he received the boon of his carthly ambition, and then turned with resignation and hope to his Heavenly Father. On the night of the 3d of April, surrounded by his friends, and with all the consolation of the Christian religion, he breathed his last.
